Red Tail Golf Club is named after the majestic red-tailed hawks that soar serenely overhead, the course is crafted from a site of natural beauty. Down on the ground, Red Tail has soared metaphorically, with plenty of press and awards to back up its status as one of the best golf clubs in Massachusetts and New England. The course flows over rolling wooded hills and meanders among numerous streams and ponds. The terrain varies from classic New England landscapes of maples, birches and oaks to tall grasses and sands evoking coastal courses. Each hole has an individual character and name, such as "Bunkers", from which old Army ammunition bunkers can still be seen off the right fairway. It is nearly impossible to pick a signature hole because there are so many choices.

18-hole, par 72 course
Total of 7,006 yards from the back tees
